

The Fridge Song

There was a middle aged business man who had a very young wife
When younger me made eyes at her it frightened him out of his life
She was young an beautiful, he was old and grey
When they first got married they made love five times a day
Gradually as time went by things were looking bleak
It was all that he could do to make love once a week
The one day while at the office a good friend quietly said
I think that I should tell you, there's a stranger in your bed
It started as a rumor, but I know now it's a fact
If you go home now you're gonna catch them in the act
He quickly put his coat on and he rushed right out the door
Went straight to his apartment which was on the sixteenth floor
He rushed into the bedroom she was unclothed on the bed
I know you've got a man in here and I'll find him he said
He looked in every closet and behind every blind
He looked in every nook and cranny but nothing did he find
He opened up the kitchen window and quickly looked around
Then way down below he spotted something on the ground
You could see the rage upon his face as he shouted "there you are!
And looking up and grinning at him was a man in a red sports car
He picked up the refrigerator and he threw it out with force
It landed on the sports car and it killed the poor man of course
At the pearly gates of heaven the bewildered man appeared
The angel looked right at him and said, "wow! that's really weird
You shouldn't be in heaven yet this is not your year
Just take your time and tell me exactly why you're here
I was sitting in my sports car with a happy smile he said
When a huge refrigerator landed on my head
Then as if from nowhere appeared the business man
He said can someone help me, I don't know where I am
You're at the pearly gates of heaven said the angel with a smile
Please give me all your details and I'll put them in my file
The business man hung his head in shame & then he said
I really loved my wife, I guess now I should hate her
I just killed her lover boy with our refrigerator
I threw it out of the window, what else could I do
But the fridge chord caught around my leg and I got dragged out too

The angel looked at the business man, frowned and shook his head
You can't go into heaven sir, it's hell for you he said
Then as if from nowhere appeared a young & handsome man
He looked the angel in the eye & said Hi my name is Dan
Well Dan said the angel, looking most sincere
Tell what a nice young man like you is doing here
And then came the young man's embarrassed reply
I was sitting in this fridge he said feeling very cold
Someone pushed it out of the window, And now the stories told.

Copyright 2011